

Generally fair, slightly warmer.

SPECIAL SALE TO-DAY

— OF —

JEANS PATTS

FOR 70 cents each,

That are worth $1.50 in a regular way. Only about 200 pairs, and only one pair allowed to each customer.

EASTER FURNISHINGS.

THE ARLINGTON, a new shape in a Puff Scarf, made of fine English Twills and French Crepes. A regular 75c Tie, but we name price for to-day, (see windows), 50 cents.

Endless varieties of other novelties.

THE YETMAN

MURPHY, HIBBEN & CO.,

(WHOLESALE EXCLUSIVELY.)

PARASOLS—A representative line of goods in RUFFLES and LACE-TRIMMED UMBRELLAS, in natural and fine carved woods, plain and mounted, gold and silver handles, in great variety. CHILDREN'S PARASOLS given special attention.

FANS—Our complete line of FANS is now ready for inspection. All new shapes and designs. "NING POO" in all colors.

HOSIERY—Leading novelties in OPERA LENGTHS. SOLID CARDINALS—Blacks, Tans, Drabs. "Guaranteed Stainless."

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC NOTIONS.

Lowest prices always a certainty.

TO THE TRADE: WE OFFER

BOSTON RUBBER SHOE CO.'S GOODS FOR SEASON 1892-93

At 50 per cent. off on Boston's : At 20 and 10 per cent. off on Day States

Delivery made after March 31. Prices guaranteed.

M'KEE & CO., Wholesale Boots Shoes and Rubbers

93 and 95 South Meridian St.

Cleveland, Cincinnati, BIG 4 ROUTE.

Chicago & St. Louis.

EXCURSION TO ANDERSON,

TUESDAY, April 19, 1892, under the auspices of K. O. F. LODGE, No. 156.

12.35—FOR THE ROUND TRIP—$1.25

Special Excursion Train will leave Union Station, Indianapolis, at 8:30 p. m., returning, leave Anderson at 7 a. m., Tuesday, April 20, returning, leave Indianapolis at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, April 21.

For tickets and full information call at Webster's Cigar Store, 61 West Washington st., or at St. Paul's, 100 North Illinois st., "Big 4" city ticket office, and Union Station, Indianapolis.

KNIGHTS OF ST. JOHN will go to EVANSVILLE and assist in installation of EVANSVILLE COMMANDERY, SUNDAY, APRIL 18, 1892.

Excursion train will leave Indianapolis at 11 p. m., Saturday, April 17, and return without change of cars, reaching Evansville at 10 a. m., Sunday, April 18, Evansville about 8:30, Sunday evening, and reach Indianapolis at 3:45 Monday morning.

ONLY $3.00—FOR THE TRIP—ONLY $3.00

For tickets and full information call on E. F. Maher, W. J. McLaughlin, Jerry Zeas and Albert Roroff, committee, also, "Big 4" city ticket office, and Union Station, Indianapolis.

The "Big 4" World's Fair Route is now selling tickets.

CHICAGO, $2.50

TO CHICAGO AND RETURN, 7.00

WE OFFER

— A —

Thousand : Mile : Book

— FOR —

$20.00

— GOOD ON —

21 Different Roads.

Abstracting nearly every point in

INDIANA, ILLINOIS and OHIO

5 TRAINS DAILY 5

FOR

Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Detroit.

— AND —

Points EAST, NORTH and SOUTH

TICKET OFFICES—Corner Illinois street and Kentucky street, Indianapolis, and Union Station, Indianapolis.

86° FOR WAGON WHEAT

ACME MILLS, West Washington St.

MAY END IN A DUEL.

Madam De Stairs and Her New Husband Will Go to Europe and Face the Baron.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Zeborowski have given up their intention of going to the Sandwich Islands, and have decided to take a trip to Europe, despite the fact that Baron De Stairs is supposed to be in Paris, awaiting just such an opportunity to meet Mr. Zeborowski and give him a piece of his mind. Mr. Zeborowski, who has been living at the Auditorium ever since his wife secured a divorce in Sioux Falls from the Baron, called upon United States Commissioner Hayne this afternoon and made application for passports for himself and wife to go to Europe. The applications were forwarded to the State Department, and will be returned in a few days. Mr. Zeborowski is said to be a fighter, and to entertain a desire to meet the Baron on the field of honor, if the Baron be so disposed. It is also said that he and his wife are going abroad just to show the Baron that they are not afraid of him, and are indifferent to his efforts to secure a rehearing in the divorce case. However, if the Zeborowski place foot upon the soil of the Baron's native land, he can, it is said, under the laws of his country, compel his ex-wife to return to him. The laws in the Netherlands are said not to recognize divorces obtained in foreign countries, and the Zeborowski is that even thing he is compelled to face a charge of bigamy if they get into the Baron's territory.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 15.—Because Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. John Luckhardt attempted to interfere in a family quarrel between Fred Herdlin and his wife to-day, Herdlin ran into his house and before the women could get out of range, fired the contents of a shotgun at them. Both women were hit in the groin and a dangerous wound inflicted on a two-year old child. Mrs. Luckhardt was carrying Herdlin, and was overpowered by several neighbors and was terribly beaten. The women are in a critical condition.

Two Women and a Baby Shot.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 15.—Because Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. John Luckhardt attempted to interfere in a family quarrel between Fred Herdlin and his wife to-day, Herdlin ran into his house and before the women could get out of range, fired the contents of a shotgun at them. Both women were hit in the groin and a dangerous wound inflicted on a two-year old child. Mrs. Luckhardt was carrying Herdlin, and was overpowered by several neighbors and was terribly beaten. The women are in a critical condition.

Key of Powder Expended by a Rifle Bullet.

XENIA, O., April 15.—While E. B. Conwell was handling a rifle yesterday, in his hardware store, the weapon was discharged. The bullet struck a keg of gun powder and caused it to explode. The front of the building was blown out and three men were injured, Conwell probably fatally.

FOUL WORDS OF A TAMMANYITE

Philip Wissig Shocks the New York Legislature by an Attack on Women.

Speech Against a Female Suffrage Measure in Which Language Too Indecent Even for Democrats to Tolerate Was Used.

Bill Passed by the Assembly Giving Fair Sex the Privilege of Voting.

Malignant Falseness Promptly Refuted by Cornelius N. Bliss—He Is Heart and Soul for the Old Trick, Hearst and Morton.

AN INDECENT SPEECH.

A Tammanyite Disgraces Even in His Own Kind by His Remarks About Women.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 15.—"Phil" Wissig, of the Eighth New York assembly district, to-day disgraced himself in the chamber of which he represented, by the most indecent and brutal speech ever made in the history of Albany legislation. He made a speech on the Yetman woman suffrage bill which shocked every man in the Assembly chamber and caused the women who filled the floor behind the railing to cover their faces to hide their burning blushes.

The women had crowded into the chamber to hear the debate on the bill, in which the woman's suffrage party is so vitally interested. Not only the floor, but the galleries, were filled with women. Evidently Wissig thought he was making some very witty remarks. A self-satisfied smile overspread his face. Every sentence contained a double meaning of the most disgusting character.

Colonel Webster, of the Twenty-third district, next in line to the speaker's chair, and demanded that the blackguard be called to order. When Wissig ceased his vile tirade Colonel Webster demanded that his dirty language be expunged from the record. A dozen members were instantly on their feet to second the demand, and a motion to expunge was carried in thunder. Nothing so insulting to a legislative body has ever been heard.

Mrs. Margaret J. Hooy, of New York city, who represents the woman's labor organization for this district, at once brought the matter to the attention of every labor organization in the State. "And this is a man," she said, with a sneer, "one of the lords of creation, who is supposed to be alone competent to rule the government. No wonder, with one of these representatives made on the floor of the House. General Husted and Colonel Webster favored the bill, while others opposed it as unconstitutional, silly, unwise or needless, according to their views. It was passed by a vote of 59 to 31, but it will not pass the Senate."

The bill is intended "An act to prevent discrimination of sex at elections." Its full text is as follows:

Section 1. Every citizen, irrespective of sex, shall hereafter be entitled to vote for all and every office hereafter to be elected in this State and on any question submitted to a vote of the people, and to hold any office in this State, and to possess the qualifications now required by law.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect July 1, 1893.

ROW IN OHIO'S LEGISLATURE.

Some of the Members Wanted to Attend a Prize-Fight and Provoked Trouble.

United Press Dispatch.

COLUMBUS, O., April 15.—A night session of the House of Representatives broke up in a row at 10 o'clock to-night. A number of the members desired to attend a prize-fight at the Columbus Athletic Club, and though in the minority, planned to force an adjournment, in order that they might do so. Representative Daugherty, who was a party to it, was in the chair, and he declared a motion to adjourn, and refused to notice demands for yeas and nays. He declared the motion to adjourn carried, and a viva voce vote. Instantly there was a scene of pandemonium on the floor. Representative Taylor, his face livid with rage, hurled terrible denunciations at the Chair. Representative Baughman cried: "Put the scoundrel out of the chamber!" and a chair came from all over the floor, but Chairman Daugherty had declared the adjournment, and the members were free. The worst of the situation is that a guerrilla warfare is likely to be the result, and the House of Representatives will be taken to pieces. The adjournment was taken to pieces. The adjournment was taken to pieces. The adjournment was taken to pieces.

CATHOLIC ODD-FELLOWS.

Not Excommunicated for Joining the Order, but They Must Resign and Do Penance.

BALTIMORE, April 15.—On the 26th of this month the Odd-fellows will dedicate the new hall which they have erected in the heart of the city. It is a half square below the Cathedral and on the same square with one of the largest Catholic churches of the city, and directly below the new home of one of the Catholic orders. It is a large four-story building, admirably adapted to the uses of the society. The Independent Order of Odd-fellows was formed in Baltimore, and monument to its founder is one of the ornaments of the city's park. Efforts will be made to bring back the international headquarters to Baltimore, where they were for over half a century.

A peculiar question that has arisen since the order of Odd-fellows is one relating to the standing of the order among the Catholics. It had been said by some persons that Catholics could not remain members of the order, although interviews with church authorities. The opinion given is that Catholics cannot remain members of the order, although they will not be excommunicated for having joined it, provided they resign and do penance. The Independent Order of Odd-fellows is condemned," said a prominent Catholic, but the Catholic Odd-fellows are not excommunicated, as Catholics have joined the order and who promise to withdraw. The Odd-fellows themselves seemed unconcerned about the discussion, as their membership is Protestant.

No Slight to Alger Was Intended.

DETROIT, Mich., April 15.—The fact that General Alger was not present at the Republican State convention, yesterday, is causing considerable comment in political circles. His absence is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that nearly every other prominent Republican in the State was there, including ex-Senator Palmer, president of the world's fair commission, who made a ringing speech. It was announced on Wednesday that Gen. Alger would be in the convention and make a speech. His friends say he was ready and waiting, but that he was not invited. Senator McMillan controlled the

WILD RUSH OF HOME-SEEKERS

Thousands Engage in a Race for Choice Quarter Sections in South Dakota.

An Exciting Contest in the Land of the Sissetons, in Which the "Sceners," as Usual, Had the Advantage Over the Law-Obeying.

Scenes at Various Points When the Bugle and Rifle Sounded the Signal.

One Girl Who Was Bound Not to Get Left—The Country Dotted with Squatters Last Night—Spirited Rivalry but No Bloodshed.

SCRAMBLE FOR HOMES.

The Sisseton Reservation Opened for Settlement Yesterday—Many Exciting Scenes.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 15.—Yesterday, in the northwest corner of the State of South Dakota, the triangular piece of land, woods and lakes, known as the Sisseton Indian reservation, which for the past thirty years has been sacred to the wild man of the prairies, was a sea of mud, frowned on by a threatening sky, and surrounded on all of its three sides by hundreds of thousands of men, who had gathered there for the purpose of securing a home. The day opened with a breeze in the clouds, and during the night colder winds blew and chilled the bones, but not the enthusiasm of the waiting multitude.

This morning the sun shone down on groups of ready and eager settlers. They were girding themselves for a race for homes, and to-night thousands are sleeping under the blue sky, but on the soil of their new homes. Only a few hours before the mud and anticipation of yesterday, and the weary rest after the race and the acquirement of a home to-day, and yet how many incidents and how much importance to the homes and future of the State has happened. It had been a week of excitement in the dozens of towns and cities that are near the boundaries of the reservation. Incoming hundreds attempted to evade the vigilance of the soldiers, and, when the choice lands were opened, and the bugle sounded, the men rushed to the line, there to await the signal that was to be heard around the reservation.

THE START FROM BROWN'S VALLEY.

One of the greatest crowds was at Brown's Valley, Minn., at the lower end of Lake Traverse, and within a few miles of the line. It had been a scene of activity all week, and the settlers and town-site boomers were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

At 10 o'clock fully three thousand persons had collected along the reservation where it runs southward along the high bluff which rises abruptly from the river monument at the head of Lake Traverse. Many in the crowd were spectators from the villages surrounding the country. The cavalry patrols galloped back and forth along the line keeping the impatient crowd in check. At 11:05 o'clock the crowd was suddenly and decisively moved. Good nature prevailed in the crowd, although there was something cropping out in every direction. The men were too excited to sleep last night. During the night intermittent yells, laughter and a tumult of noise came from the various camps around the village, and as dawn approached these were supplemented by the neighing of horses hitched to the trees, barking of dogs, and the clanging of the festive chautauki in the barnyards of the valley farms. Before 10 o'clock the line was a mass of men, women and children, and the crowd was a sea of heads and shoulders in never-ending lines. Out of town they streamed, and were soon strung along the boundary.

THE CZAR'S HIRED ASSASSINS

Bulgaria Demands that They Be Forcefully Ejected from the Soil of Turkey.

Note to the Powers Which Is Supposed to Be the Precursor of a Proclamation of Independence and a Probable European War.

England's Army Wholly Unfit to Cope with an Enemy in Event of Trouble.

Lord Wolsey, Sir Evelyn Wood, the Duke of Cambridge and Others Give Testimony That Caused a Sensation in Great Britain.

BULGARIA'S DEMANDS.

Russian Assassins Must Be Expelled from Turkey—A Note to the Powers.

SPECIAL TO THE INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL.

VIENNA, April 15.—The gravest apprehensions have been aroused here by the announcement that Bulgaria has sent a note to the powers complaining that the Sultan has ceased to protect Bulgaria's interests, and that the Turkish government protects Russia's protégés, who have entered upon a campaign of assassination against Bulgaria's public men, from Prince Ferdinand down. The note demands that Turkey be compelled to expel the assassins whom Russia supports on her soil. The note is supposed to be the precursor of a proclamation of Bulgaria's independence from Turkey, and such a proclamation would inevitably result in a war. The note is considered the result of protection by Turkey and Russia of the murderers of Dr. Kulevitch, of the late war with Germany and Austria at once. The conspirators have been encouraged by the Czar and the millions paid by Russia to Bulgaria in order to murder a Russian minister, and the millions paid to the Bulgarian government against the Bulgarian government. The note demands that Turkey be compelled to expel the assassins whom Russia supports on her soil. The note is supposed to be the precursor of a proclamation of Bulgaria's independence from Turkey, and such a proclamation would inevitably result in a war. The note is considered the result of protection by Turkey and Russia of the murderers of Dr. Kulevitch, of the late war with Germany and Austria at once. The conspirators have been encouraged by the Czar and the millions paid by Russia to Bulgaria in order to murder a Russian minister, and the millions paid to the Bulgarian government against the Bulgarian government.

The note demands that Turkey be compelled to expel the assassins whom Russia supports on her soil. The note is supposed to be the precursor of a proclamation of Bulgaria's independence from Turkey, and such a proclamation would inevitably result in a war. The note is considered the result of protection by Turkey and Russia of the murderers of Dr. Kulevitch, of the late war with Germany and Austria at once. The conspirators have been encouraged by the Czar and the millions paid by Russia to Bulgaria in order to murder a Russian minister, and the millions paid to the Bulgarian government against the Bulgarian government.

The note demands that Turkey be compelled to expel the assassins whom Russia supports on her soil. The note is supposed to be the precursor of a proclamation of Bulgaria's independence from Turkey, and such a proclamation would inevitably result in a war. The note is considered the result of protection by Turkey and Russia of the murderers of Dr. Kulevitch, of the late war with Germany and Austria at once. The conspirators have been encouraged by the Czar and the millions paid by Russia to Bulgaria in order to murder a Russian minister, and the millions paid to the Bulgarian government against the Bulgarian government.

The note demands that Turkey be compelled to expel the assassins whom Russia supports on her soil. The note is supposed to be the precursor of a proclamation of Bulgaria's independence from Turkey, and such a proclamation would inevitably result in a war. The note is considered the result of protection by Turkey and Russia of the murderers of Dr.